Bonbons

*Every time I smile
you'll get a bonbon, a
really sweet bonbon.*

*What a
tragedy...*

*...You
were so
young.*

*My baby, I had no
idea it will be my last
time to ever hear you
say, "Bye, Mommy".*

*The day you left us,
all the lights in this
world faded.*

*You won't even
be able to hold you
to my arms.*

That day, if I had known... I wouldn't have let go of your hand.

MOMMY...

*Your time has stopped
and become frozen in my memory. You will never grow up.*

*Wipe off my
most precious
treasure...*

STAY! DON'T LEAVE ME!

"If she leaves the carriage tomorrow at sunrise, you'll never see her again. Her soul will be doomed to wander through darkness for all eternity."

LET ME
GO IN HER
PLACE!

THAT'S IMPOSSIBLE!

*"This is a pain you will have to bear.
No matter how much you love someone. The living, those are the ones who endure
the pain of death and the loneliness
after losing someone."*

"Your suffering is the water vapor that forms the clouds that carry paradise. That's why it never stops raining. Sometimes, it also snows. The ones up in paradise are watching the sad people, without ever being able to cool off all the darkness they're sending them."

"You may now grant your child's last wish."

"Mummy..."

"Please don't cry, okay?"

To Canada, every tear shed by a mother, turns into a really bitter syrup. We have to drink it to understand what a mother has to endure for her child, pregnancy and birth. We have to drink it to understand how exhausting it is to bring us up!

*We cry very bitter. And with every cry,
I can taste my mother's tears. Only bitter-sweet!
I don't like bitter-syrup at all!*

*"But every time you
laugh for me, it'll turn
into a sweet honey.
And you'll be the happy
mom whose joy was feeding my grief. Your happiness is like honey
and its taste reminds me
how much I was loved.
How lucky I am!"*

*"That's
why I want
you..."*

*"My dear
Mommy, to live on..."*

*"I'm really happy
that I got to be
your daughter, and I
will remain forever
in your memory."*

*"We need to hurry!
The clouds are gone,
which means that we
can see the path now!
Get on! You will meet
again, and day you'll go
there as well!"*

*"But enjoy your life
until then. That way
you will be able to tell her about all the things she wasn't able to experience
when you're together
again."*
